

Sometimes ideas come from the most unexpected manner possible. The "Roots" coffee table is an example.

My wife and I don't disagree on most things. But one of them is our cocktail table. She wants to put decorative items like magazines and vases. I want to put my feet.. So, we have agreed that if I would design a cocktail table beautiful enough, both had to relinquish our objectives. Hence Roots; a design so strong that nothing else should disturb it. The inspiration came from a lamp that I've designed earlier and failed, so I've recycled and enhanced the concept to a table.

"Roots" has several variations between positive/negative, a classic version with five types of wood or a modern with three types of metal, there is a version that meets your requirement and taste.
